SICKLY CHILD

Made Well By Vinol—Letters from a Grateful Mother

New Haven, Conn.—"My little girl, ever since her birth, was frail and sickly and nothing seemed to do her any good until we tried your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. As soon as she commenced to take it, I noticed an improvement in her health and appearance. She has now taken three bottles of Vinol, and from the good it has done her I can say it will do all you claim for it in building up and strengthening frail and delicate children." (Name furnished on request.)

Another mother of Chicago, Ill., writes: "I can not say too much in praise of Vinol for delicate, ailing children."

We ask every mother of a frail, sickly or ailing child in this vicinity to try Vinol on our agreement to return their money if it does not do all we claim.

NEWARK THEATRES

NEWARK THEATRE.

That clever Irish comedian, Andrew Mack, who comes to the Newark Theatre next week, belongs to what is known as the romantic school; not for him the wire-drawn wit and bitter aftertaste of modern comedy or late Victorian play.

In "Tom Moore," the Irish romantic comedy in which Mr. Mack has scored such a success on his trip around the world, the auditor is treated to a happy blending of pathos and bathos, laughter and tears, tears and laughter. These make the four long acts in the stage story of "Tom Moore," good measure and overflowing, the constant delight of the playgoer. During the action of the play, Mr. Mack renders several of Tom Moore's beautiful ballads, including "The Last Rose of Summer," "Love's Young Dream" and "Evelyn's Dower," in addition to several of his own latest compositions.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE.

The management of F. F. Proctor's Park Place Theatre was under the impression, as likewise an appreciative public was convinced, that the recent ten-act bills were quite the highest achievement of modern vaudeville in point of brilliancy and varied excellence. The superb array of talent secured for the week of April 29, is the greatest galaxy of celebrities ever handled on a single bill. Sharing headline honors are the most beautiful and best dressed woman in the world, Valeska Suratt, and the greatest of all character comedians, Maclyn Arbuckle. "Cabaret a la Proctor" is the title of the style of entertainment. Others on this most remarkable program of excellence are Kate Elinore and Sam Williams in "The Irregular Army"; Yvette, the whirlwind violinist; John Dove, a Newark boy known as "The Scotch Minstrel"; the Great Howard, without an equal in the ventriloquist line; the Five Arminis, Vittoria and Georgetta, "The Upside Down Boys"; Rembrandt, the air-tornist, and motion pictures that should prove instructive and amusing to all.

MINER'S THEATRE.

Better than ever may be judiciously and intelligently ascribed to "Henry P. Dixon's Big Review" company which, with Frankie Heath and Harry Le Van, will be the next attraction at Miner's Newark Theatre, beginning the week of April 29. "Hickey in Politics" is the vehicle offered. It is a musical farce comedy in two acts, boasting of lilting tunes, pretty girls, novelties and features that are easily above the average. There is a combination of burlesque and travesty, drama and buffoonery, being in its entirety an entertainment sure to find ready endorsement from the most blasé theatregoers. Others in the cast are Florrie Brooks, Russell Simpson, Harry Lorraine, Nellie Woods, George Howard, Edith Lamond, Miss Shannon Dale and Charles Saxton. There will be no increase in prices and the usual matinees will be given.

GAYETY THEATRE.

To those who have a morbid taste, a very extraordinary engagement has been made at the Gayety for next week. Lillian Graham and Edith Conrad, the two notorious shooting stars, who have been specially secured as an added feature with the "Queens of the Jardin de Paris," a burlesque attraction. These two women were recently acquitted of the charge of attempted murder on W. E. D. Stokes, the millionaire proprietor of the Hotel Ansonia, New York. They offer a musical melange (an affair without pistols) entitled "The Girls Who Dared," in addition to which Newark's now eminent comedian, Harry Koler, will appear, surrounded by a carefully selected company of comedians and thirty prettiest girls in burlesque. "The Queens of the Jardin de Paris" is one of the most expensive productions that ever came from Broadway. May 6—"The Winning Widow."

The Danger After Grip lies often in a run-down system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the glorious tonic, blood purifier and regulator of stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of Grip. It is infallible for them. Only 50 cents. Sold and perfect satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.—Adv.

One Dollar per Million.

Based on a calculation that one dollar spent in mosquito extermination will kill off one million mosquitoes, the people of New Haven, Conn., are planning the death of twenty-five thousand million mosquitoes this year, by raising $25,000 to be used in a warfare against the pests.

The mosquito-fighting fund is being raised by popular subscription.

The faith of the New Haven people in the eventual success of this extermination plan is based on the success of similar work elsewhere.

The history of the work in Havana, New Orleans, Santos, Panama and other places where mosquitoes have been entirely exterminated, and where yellow fever and malaria are no longer known, proves conclusively that it can be done.

Any one who knows anything about Panama knows that the place fairly swarmed with mosquitoes for twelve months in each year, and that the laborers employed on the canal died in great numbers from yellow fever and malaria. Now, while the average illness of New York street cleaners is thirty to the thousand, the illness of the workers of Panama is but seventeen to the thousand.

The plan of campaign, as set forth in a circular letter, as follows:

The fresh water and malarial mosquitoes travel only a few hundred yards. The salt marsh mosquitoes, which form by far the greatest number hereabouts, travel from five to ten or more miles.

The remainder breed in barrels, tin cans, roof gutters, etc.; in fact, in any unscreened receptacle which will catch and hold water for more than a week. Remember, they do not and cannot breed in grass. They only hide in it.

A permanent means of relief is by draining or filling the pools in which they breed.

A temporary method is to oil the pools where they breed. This must be done about eight times during the season.

The cost for permanent relief is estimated at about $25,000; for one season's relief, with oil, at about $1,200.

Draining and filling will be carried on so far as funds collected will permit, beginning with the worst breeding places. Until the breeding places can be drained they will be treated temporarily with oil. The work will be done under the supervision of Dr. W. E. Britton of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station.

Mosquitoes are a common enemy and must be attacked by all in the community. In order to attain the relief desired the co-operation of all the citizens of New Haven and the surrounding towns must be had.

The committee will solicit donations through officially appointed collectors.

All persons in the community are benefited.

Co-operative Store.

Montclair's co-operative store will open at 665 Bloomfield avenue, that town, on May 1.

Emerson P. Harris has been elected president of the co-operative society, and W. M. Rockwell secretary. The capital necessary to conduct the business has been subscribed.

A delivery system has been adopted whereby goods will be delivered by wagon without extra charge, but at the end of each purchase dividend period allowance will be made in favor of those who carry their goods home, while only actual cost for delivery will be borne by those who have had the delivery service.

It is nearly forty years ago that a number of residents of this town banded together for the purpose of securing to themselves and others the benefits of the retailers' profits in the selling of groceries and provisions, and started a co-operative store. That store is still in existence, but in private hands.

The co-operative scheme was not a success owing to the fact that some of the voluble theorists who proclaimed loudly for co-operation could not or would not respond when cash was needed to keep the business going.

The Montclair project is started on a more elaborate scale than the experiment here was, and the fact that ready capital is at hand puts the undertaking on a possible road to success.

Montclair Academy Notes.

The Alumni Association of the Montclair Academy has recently elected the following officers to serve for the coming two years: President, William Nugent, '08; first vice-president, William Newell, '01; second vice-president, H. E. Merselle, '00; third vice-president, A. J. A. Sullivan, '10; secretary, Harold Bradley, executive committee, M. J. Sweetland, '05; Howard M. Thomas, '02.

McJ. C. MacVicar has presented for competition in the lower school a cup which will go to the best all-round boy in that department.

Harry Tonks, '12, delivered a very interesting after-dinner talk on Friday evening last.

In a practice game played last Saturday morning, the Montclair Academy defeated the Leal School by a score of 10-0. The academy played the Mackenzie School on Wednesday.

The next games on the schedule are as follows: April 30, Orange High School vs. Academy, in Montclair at 3 P. M.; May 4, Bridgeport High School vs. Academy, in Montclair at 2-30 P. M.

Friday evening Warner W. Kent, '12, gave a step-dance lecture on Cuba. This was as enjoyable as those formerly given on Alaska and Switzerland.

On May 3 Mr. J. C. Meade will give a Shakespeare reading, his subject being "Julius Caesar."

Interesting Side-Light.

It is an interesting side-light on the Dick-Henry patent case, recently decided in the Supreme Court in favor of the patentee, that he has the right to safeguard his patent to the extent of stipulating what material or other essential shall be used in making his patent useful and perfect, to know that the British patent law was the outgrowth of a contest against monopolies which, in many of its features, resembles the contest going on to-day. It is the customary statement that Parliament is entitled to all the credit for having won trade liberty for English-speaking people. In a sense this is true, but curiously enough it was Parliament which originally was itself the representative of monopolies because its members were largely recruited from the great town guilds, that is, the great trade guilds of England. It was the endeavor of Parliament to maintain the monopoly of these trade guilds and to prevent the country people at large from entering any of these trades except through the restricted channels of the guild.

Out of the abuse of grants given the guilds, the people rose up and demanded their rights, with the result that a contest ensued between the Crown and Parliament, resulting first in the interesting and remarkable proclamation of Elizabeth in 1601 through her secretary, Lord Cecil, and in her "Golden Speech" to the members of the House of Commons in November of the same year. But after Elizabeth came, unfortunately, James and Charles I. And the fight went on until finally Parliament succeeded in wresting from James in 1623 the great Statute of Monopolies, which provided for the introduction of new trades, making exception to the first inventors of new manufactures.

Trip Down Mississippi.

During the hearings the past week on river improvement prospects the Lakes to the Gulf representatives extended an invitation to the Commerce Committee of the Senate to make the trip down the Mississippi at this time, urging that the object lesson would be of incalculable benefit to the members and would give them a first-hand knowledge of the needs of the Mississippi that would be more valuable than all the maps and reports in the world. For a time it seemed probable that the senators would make the trip, but so many are the demands upon them just now, particularly from sections of the country other than the water-shed of the Mississippi and its tributaries, desiring hearings before the committee, that the visit was finally, but reluctantly, given up.

Ladies' World.

The Ladies' World for May is unusually rich in fiction of a most entertaining kind, besides having some special articles that are timely, well-written and interesting. This magazine advances steadily in excellence, the quality of its contents, both text and illustrations, being fully equal to that of its higher-priced contemporaries. There is also a novel contest on the subject of choosing a husband that is sure to tempt the sands of its readers to enter. The chief stories are: "A Golden Wedding," by Maude Sutton, with illustrations by Pfeiffer; "A Reflected Halo," by Bess Hafer, illustrated by Ashe; "Before the Journey," by Lillian Nicholson, illustrated by Emrich, and "The Little Girl Next Door," by Weymer Mills, illustrated by Cyrus Kingsbury.

CANDY AS A MEDICINE.

Pure candy has a high medicinal value. An eminent practitioner, writing in the "British Medical Journal" says that he has used cane sugar repeatedly and most successfully in various forms of rheumatism, in neurasthenic conditions, in cases of heart strain dilation and valvular heart disease especially in people of advanced age.

He adds that cane sugar acts not merely as a nutrient or food, but also as a tonic in the best sense of the word.

He prescribes at times half a pound of pure cane sugar to be used daily taken at such times as will not interfere with meals. All that is said about the value of cane sugar applies as well to our candies, for we carry only pure candy and we know that it is free from adulterants.

Don't consider candy merely as an indulgence. It is valuable to every system as a food and to many as a medicine.

The Best in Candy is "Schraff's." We have it. All prices.
